SIXTY-SECOND YEAR NO. 29

GRAYLING, MICHIGAN, THURSDAY, JULY 21, 1949

10 PAGES - PRINTED IN ONE SECTION - PRICE 5 CENTS

To Select Best Guardsman

The outstanding soldier of the Michigan National Guard will be selected in a competition for the Steward Medal at the 1949 field training encampment at Camp Grayling, according to a directive to unit commanders issued this week by Major General Ralph A. Lovell, commanding general.

Michigan's 131st Guard unit is currently preparing for their 1949 field training scheduled for August 6 to 20. Following preliminary eliminations in all units, final judging on August 12 will find six Guardsmen competing for the award.

Finalist in the competition will be judged on the wearing of the uniform, care of equipment, school of the soldier, knowledge of arms, military courtesy, guard duty, first aid and leadership.

The Steward Medal competition was originally instituted in honor of Brig. General Earl R. Stewart of Grand Rapids, who commanded the Michigan National Guard following World War I and prior to his death in 1923. Winner of the 1948 award was First Sergeant Richard C. Maguire, Company B, 425th Infantry Regiment, Detroit.

With a strength of 9,619 officers and men at the end of June the Michigan National Guard marked a net gain of 11 per cent in strength during the first six months of 1949, according to a report issued by Brigadier General George C. Moran, the Adjutant General.

On January 1 Guard strength totaled 8,621, including 7,549 in army unit and 1,072 in air units. On June 30 strength of army units totaled 8,932 and air units, 1,290, for a total of 9,619. Current strength is the greatest in history and more than twice the prewar average.

Net gain, however, is only part of the Guard's recruiting problem. A total of 1,435 discharges were reported during the same period. Heavy turnover of Guard personnel during the first six months of 1949 was caused by the following reasons in order of their importance: Removal from station, business reasons, entered Federal service and expiration of enlistment.

The fact that 260 Guardsmen entered the regular forces during the six month period indicates that the Guard continues to be an excellent training medium for the regular forces.

18-Year-Olds Must Sign Up

Calling attention to the fact that failure to register is a violation of law and makes the delinquent liable to penalty, Colonel Glenn E. Arnold, Michigan State Director of Selective Service, today outlined registration requirements under the Selective Service Act of 1948, which he said he believed were not thoroughly understood by all of the general public.

"The obligation to register," Colonel Arnold said, "is a continuing obligation and must be fulfilled regardless of whether men

Trained Animals Star With Circus

No circus would be complete without dogs and ponies. The Ayres & Kathryn Davies Wild Animal Circus which comes here on August 5 for performances in the afternoon and evening offers the Montgomery Military Ponies. Five spotted beauties execute a series of precision drills seldom seen in these times. They caper on their hind legs, roll barrels, waltz, and mount pedestals at the command of their trainer, Pringle's Educated Dogs execute back somersaults, jump rope, play London bridge, balance on the slack wire push puppies in a baby carriage, ride scooters, to mention only a few of the tricks. Delightful is the performance of a rare two and one-half foot high Sicilian mule named Toni. He plays on a musical bell, leaps hurdles, and comically harasses his trainer.

In addition the Ayres and Kathryn Davies Wild Animal Circus presents Captain Eugene Christy and his performing jungle bred African lions, the Frazer Troupe, lovely Betty Tilton, queen of the air, cowboys and cowgirls, Australian bull whip crackers, hilarious clowns, acrobats, equilibrists, and many other amusing acts. Arriving here at early dawn on its caravan of twenty trucks and trailers, the tented city will be erected at the City Park field.

The community is invited to the grounds to watch the erection of the tents and feeding of the animals on the morning of circus day. The show is sponsored by the Grayling Chamber of Commerce and Kiwanis Club.

Traffic Deaths Can Be Avoided

At least 10 lives can be saved each week end the remainder of the summer if Michigan motorists exercise the same caution that they did over the recent Fourth of July week end, State Police Commissioner Donald S. Leonard states.

Reports received thus far by the Department's safety and traffic bureau show only seven traffic deaths in the state over the recent holiday. This is the all-time low for that period. The previous low was 10 in 1946 and the high was 32 in 1938. Last year 23 lost their lives.

During the summer months of 1948 an average of 18 persons were killed in traffic accidents each week. A saving of 10 lives a week would mean a total of 60 before the end of the present summer.

Of the total deaths recorded over a period of 13 consecutive week ends last year 50 occurred on Fridays, 95 on Saturdays and 86 on Sundays.

Leonard attributed the Fourth of July record this year to unusual care on the part of drivers, intensified efforts of enforcement officers and the constant emphasis placed on safety by press and radio.

"It shows what can be done when there is a desire to do it," he said. "This record is a remarkable credit to all concerned and was accomplished despite the fact that the volume of Fourth of July traffic was the highest it has ever been for that week end."

Both aerial and ground observations indicated greater vigilance on the part of drivers, Leonard said. On the last days of the week end the State Police plane circled the Detroit metropolitan area during the congested hours and periodic traffic reports were broadcast so that they could be received over car radios. Drivers on crowded highways were advised as to less heavily traveled alternate routes, with the result that traffic moved more quickly and hazards were reduced.

Grayling Legion Post News

Our last regular meeting was postponed because everybody attended the school meeting, which was right and proper. But let's all of us turn out for the next meeting, Monday, July 25. Next Monday night, that is.

There are several big questions to come up concerning the bar and other affairs. And fellow comrades, we need your help to decide them. Don't leave this to a few and their yip because it doesn't suit you. Get up there and vote.

Bring your gripes up at this meeting. They will do you no good otherwise.

Starting next meeting night, July 25, the Legion will give a door prize to some lucky member. The prize next meeting will be two dozen trout and bass flies packed in a Bill DeWitt pirac shell fly box. This prize may be seen at the Legion bar. It was donated to the Legion by Sailor Huddleston.

But in order to win the prize you must be a paid up member and remain for the entire meeting. The rules are a bit stiff, but we believe you can do it, for a chance to win this nice prize free.

The Grayling Post is also planning on sponsoring a band concert on the Court House lawn by the Michigan National Guard Band on August 15. On the 18th, plans are being laid for a big street dance for the guardsmen. Peninsular Street will be closed from Michigan Avenue to Iowa Street in front of the Legion Hall for this dance.

Immediately following the wedding a luncheon was given by the brides parents in the church parlors for 28 guests. Grayling rolled up 14 runs on 12 hits while committing 4 errors. The Lakers pushed over only 8 runs on 10 hits while making 5 misplays. Bob "Musty" Gildner was again on the mound for the Indies with Ross Thompson behind the plate. Houghton Lake started Dittmer on the mound and he lasted until the sixth when Ross took over the hurrying duties. Averill backstopped for the Lakers. Gildner struck out 4 and issued 13 walks. Dittmer fanned 7 and Ross 6. The two Lakers hurlers issued 6 walks between them during their pitching efforts.

Police Plan Set For Camp Period

An all over plan for enforcement procedure for Grayling and the area during the National Guard encampment at Camp Grayling has been announced by County Prosecutor Robert F. Neafie.

The county enforcement officer has made arrangements with the State Police whereby two State Policemen will be stationed at Camp Grayling proper during the encampment period. In addition, the Grayling and Houghton Lake State Police Posts will each dispatch two troopers to be on duty in Grayling from 5:30 P. M. until midnight during the training period.

The 46th Division will also aid in enforcing both military and civilian law through its police arm, the Military Police or more popularly known as M. P.'s. The Guards military police, which numbered 40 last camp period has now been doubled. Thus 80 National Guard M. P.'s will be on duty. Co-ordination between the State Police, National Guard and county enforcement officers has set as a pattern that all Guardsmen apprehended in the act or under suspicion of committing a misdemeanor will be handed over to the military forces for punishment. Those apprehended in the act of, or under suspicion of committing a felony will be handed over to Sheriff William Goulick and will face prosecution by the County Prosecutor Neafie.

Use Waste Cans Is Plea

"Use the waste cans on the down town streets," was the plea issued today by City Manager Max Davenport.

He said that city workers cleaning Graylings main street have found that the purchase and placing of trash can on the streets in the down town area has cut down on the amount of paper. However, he pointed out that if everyone would use the containers the amount of waste of the streets would be cut down even further.

"Help us keep Grayling clean," was Manager Davenport's suggestion as he said that it was impossible to put a city crew on sweeping the streets any oftener than they are now doing. He added that it would aid the city and add greatly to the appearance of the main street if merchants sweeping their sidewalks in front of their respective places of business would place the debris in the cans after sweeping and the just push it off into the gutter where it blows back on to the sidewalk or all over the pavement.

Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Post of Frederic announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Caroline June to Frank C. Madill, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Madill. EVERY MAN'S AMBITION... To take over the throttle of a big railroad engine is a universal desire. Here, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower shows he's no exception. The engineer of the allied invasion of Europe engineers the Pennsylvania railroad's streamlined train, the "General," for the first 100 yards of the 993-mile trip from Penn station. Aboard the train are members of Ike's family who were enroute to the caboose, Iowa. This train is on a New York to Chicago run. The general looks as much at home in the cab of the engine as he did at a military staff meeting during the war, or as he does now in the president's chambers at Columbia university.

What Nature Knew

A short time ago, a doctor who has an international reputation as an authority on diet, published a scientific article in one of the leading medical journals. His thesis was that the health and vitality of a people are largely determined by the amount of protein in the diet. As a striking example, he pointed to the individual superiority of American soldiers, in the last war, to those of the other nations. This, he believes, was the direct result of the fact that our Army had the highest protein content in its rations. The American soldier was a heavy eater of meat, and milk and eggs — the three sources of complete protein.

Many other examples could be cited. Travelers are always impressed by the relatively frail physical stature of many Europeans. During and since the war, especially, the physical capacity of whole nations has shown an alarming decline. This, in large part, is the consequence of a diet which has been inadequate in almost all particulars — and most inadequate in protein. Meat and eggs have been luxuries in Europe for many years. Thousands of people have lived on the borderline of starvation. Their stamina is low. And that, in turn, has mental affects which make themselves felt in a poor state of morale.

Centuries ago, in Elizabethan times, one of the most famous regiments in the British Army was given the nickname of "Beefeaters." This elite group was made up of big, ruddy men, who consumed enormous quantities of the beef of Old England. Little was known of dietetics then, and the word protein didn't exist. But the heavy quantity of protein in the diet undoubtedly gave those soldiers of a bygone age their strength and effectiveness as fighting men. Science has simply proved what nature always knew.

Surgeons Praise Bone Bank

The fact that bone may be preserved in a frozen state for weeks and is of definite value in bone-grafting operations, has been acclaimed by Leonard F. Bush, M.D., of Danville, Pa., and C. Zent Garber, M.D., of New York, in a recent issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

The doctors first experimented successfully on large chinchilla rabbits, using bone which had been kept in a deep freeze cabinet at minus 20 to 30 degrees centigrade for as long as 84 days. With no complications in these operations, they attempted using it in human patients.

For comparative purposes, they used outside bone in operations on 104 patients under three different methods. Twenty-four of these operations were by direct transfer from the donor to the patient; in 37 cases, the bone was kept under refrigeration at plus 2 to plus 5 degrees centigrade; and in 43 of the operations, the bone had been stored in a deep freezer. There were only four complications in all 104 cases.

The surgeons pointed out that the possibility of having a large supply of frozen bone available might be an important aid in many operations. Conditions in which large quantities of bone are necessary include correction of abnormal curvature of the backbone, disorders in the lower part of the back, the filling of large bone cysts, and the replacement of defects in bone.

The grafted bone furnishes a framework for the formation of new bone by substitution and by furnishing the necessary calcium. It was pointed out that while a bone bank on a small scale is desirable in every hospital which has an active bone and joint service, that there are great possibilities for further development of large bone banks, to supply the needs of surgeons in each community for bone transplants of every size and description. So bone banks may soon be joining eye banks in the reserves which medical science is setting up to protect the health of all.

Travel Spot Featured By Standard Oil

Michigan's Soo Locks, the world's busiest canal, is featured this week in an extensive summer advertising campaign promoting travel spots in the midwest, which Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is running in 1,681 newspapers throughout the 15 midwest states where the company markets, according to E. L. Hoelsi, Grayling, Standard agent.

The newspaper ad on the Soo Locks, which is in this edition of the Avalanche, is appearing in 1,140 weeklies and 541 dailies with a combined circulation of 16,500,000.

Standard of Indiana is featuring 18 midwest travel spots and Standard Oil dealers' personalized tourist information in newspaper advertising on the general theme of "Highlights of the Open Road." A feature of personalized tourist information for Standard dealers to give customers will be a 24-page travel record book and three V-mail type letters, all packaged in an open-end envelope which will also hold road maps. In the record book are pages to record expenses, notes, comments about places to eat and sleep, sights to see, and things to do. There is also a section on safe-driving tips in the book. Two of the letters, which fold to make their own envelopes, are for personal letters of motorists, while the third is addressed to Standard Oil Company for the motorist's comments about the Standard service he receives on his trip.

Selective Registration

(Continued from front page.) are being inducted into the armed forces under the Selective Service Act. The obligation to register is imposed by the Act on every male, citizen or resident, in the United States between the ages of 18 and 26, with only the general exception of members of the armed forces on active duty and certain aliens.

The young man who becomes 18 is required to register at a local board office within five days of the date of his eighteenth birthday, Colonel Arnold explained, but if he happens to be away from home he need not return; he may register at the nearest local board convenient to him and the record will be sent to the local board having jurisdiction, even though it is in another state. After he registers, it is mandatory that a registrant keep his local board informed of any change in his address or change in status, the director pointed out. This applies after he becomes 26 as well as before.

Questioned concerning the man who did not register during the designated registration days — August 30 to September 18, 1948 — because he was then on active duty in the armed forces, Colonel Arnold explained that he is required to register within 30 days of the time he was separated from the armed forces.

"Any person who changes from a status which did not require his registration to a status which does require it must register promptly to be within the law," Colonel Arnold said, adding that those who were out of the country on the registration days must register within five days following the date they reenter the United States, which includes Alaska, Hawaii, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands.

Colonel Arnold said that non-citizens entering the United States for the first time are required to register at a local board within six months following the date of their entry.

The maximum penalty for violation of any of the provisions of the Selective Service Act of 1948, Colonel Arnold pointed out, is five years in prison or a fine of $10,000 or both.

Hanging The Shingle

By RICHARD D. CARR

"IMAGINE a girl like Miss Justin getting into trouble!" exclaimed Mr. Kibb, the corporation's senior auditor. "You can't be sure about anyone!"

His young assistant, Mark Thorne, looked at his hands thoughtfully behind his head. "How about Dyhart, the manager?"

"Why, Dyhart's been with the company for years," scoffed Mr. Kibb, as he left, "besides, you've got to admit she endorsed each check."

"Mr. Thorne," said a voice behind him as Mark studied the personnel files, "Why, Miss Justin!" he said, "I wasn't expecting you. Were you to work tonight?"

"No, I came to see you. I overheard you and Mr. Kibb talking about those checks and it had me worried. Is something wrong?"

"Plenty," said Thorne. It was hard to begin. He ran a nervous hand through his black hair. "Then you know about the checks—you cashed them?"

"Yes, I cashed the checks because Mr. Dyhart told me to. Wait—you don't believe I took all that money?"

He saw cold, tight lines etched about her lips. "No, Miss Justin, but Mr. Kibb can't see it any other way. Didn't you suspect anything?"

"Certainly. I guess I looked puzzled, because each time when I handed Mr. Dyhart the money, he mentioned a change in the accounting rules."

Thorne jumped. "If Dyhart said that, it's plain no one else was in on it. He disguised his signature, so that when it came to a showdown, he could blame everything on you. That's why he had you cash the checks!"

"How can you prove it?" asked Miss Justin weakly.

"Well, it's a long chance," said Thorne, slamming his fist. "If I lose and the corporation kicks me out—I've been wanting to hang out a shingle for a long time."

MR. DYHART looked surprised as he ushered them into his living room. "Just leaving, Thorne, but business before pleasure. I suppose it's something to do with the audit?"

"That's correct," said Thorne. "Dyhart," he purposely skipped the "Mr." "you had Miss Justin cash several checks recently, amounting to nearly $10,000."

"Ridiculous," smiled Dyhart. "I know nothing of any checks."

"We've practically discovered the guilty person," went on Thorne dryly, as he opened his case and removed a cancelled check. Thorne took a sheet of paper, placed the check on it, and flashed it before Dyhart's eyes.

"All you have to do, Dyhart," he said, "is copy the signature on this check!"

The manager's face curved. "For the record," he said, "I have no objection to your copying my signature."

"I guess you won't hang out your shingle," said Miss Justin.

only sound was the tick of a clock. The pen dropped from Dyhart's hand and plopped on the rug.

Thorne snatched the pen. "Never mind, Dyhart, that's enough. This afternoon we asked every employee to copy that signature. Not one hesitated. You did, and you're guilty. I reasoned, since the tellers passed those checks, the signature, though doctored a bit, was actually yours—disguised!"

A groan fled Dyhart's lips. "I wanted to get the money back in time," he gasped. "I didn't mean to involve Miss Justin, but she was my secretary. Don't swear out a warrant, Thorne. I'll pay it all back!"

After they were in the street, Thorne took a deep breath. It made him tingle and look up at the stars pinned on a clear sky.

"Well, you're still a travelling auditor with a job so I guess you won't hang out your shingle," said Miss Justin softly.

"If I could find a secretary, a good one. Miss Justin—would you?"

"Take dictation from you?" Miss Justin laughed when she said it. Thorne decided it was the pleasantest laugh he had ever heard.

Salt can be extracted in 50-pound chunks that are 90 per cent pure. Photo shows workmen removing some of the salt from the mine to barrows. Since the Dominican Republic has set in motion a plan to raise the output of salt from Barahona province mines to 200,000 tons annually, Salt Hill has assumed a major degree of importance to the country's economy.

After the game Frederic manager Frank Madill gave the team a much needed pep talk, as the roster is composed of many youngsters, experience is the main factor for these hard playing boys, also support, so get out and watch these boys play. Frank Madill, Frederic's stellar manager is taking on a new ball player August 13th. This should strengthen the team considerably, but your local reporter and many others are wondering could it be DiMaggio. If so Frederic will be invincible.
